

Economic Impact Of South Carolina Airports

Client

Facts

Period 2006

Project Country

Wilbur Smith & Associates and Economic Development Research Group for South Carolina Division of Aeronautics, 2006

For the Division of Aeronautics in the South Carolina Department of Commerce, EDR Group (under subcontract to Wilbur Smith Associates) worked on a team study to assess the economic impact of airports and aviation in South Carolina. The study examined the economic role of each individual airport in the state.

The role of EDR Group focused on surveying airport rates, charges and fees to develop a revenue analysis of airports. This was in addition to developing a position paper on implications of global economic change on the economic role of aviation in South Carolina.

Contact Persons